THIRD AVENUE DOUBLE SHOOT-ING A SENTIMENTAL TRAGEDY.

While the Woman Lay Dead Her Husband. Carrying Their Child, Was Seeking Her Night and Day All Over Town -Letters the Couple Left Told Story.

The identity of the woman who died with the young butcher clerk, Emil Schillinger, in the Raines law hotel at Seventyeixth street and Third avenue, on Tuesday night, perhaps by his hand before his suicide, possibly by her own, was learned yesterday. She was Carrie Kadisch, a cigarmaker's wife, and the murder and suicide, or the double suicide, whichever it was, was the result of a mutual infatuation of the couple for each other and of the state of morbid sentimentality into which they had worked themselves.

That both were willing to die is beyond doubt. From a letter found on Schillinger's person, and presumably written by Mrs. Kadisch, it appears that the woman had worked herself up to a high pitch of morbid jealousy over some real or imaginary person who she thought was her rival. It also appeared from this letter that the two had planned suicide once before, and two had planned suicide once before, and the writer expressed regret that they did not carry out their plan.

Schillinger worked for a butcher named Rouscher in the latter's shop at 349 East Sixty-fifth street and Mrs. Kadisch lived with her husband and four-year-old child across the way at No. 846. Schillinger's employer said that the woman came to his shop frequently and had long talks with the clerk, but that he, the employer, did not dream that things had come to so with the clerk, but that he, the employer, did not dream that things had come to so serious a pass with them. The woman's husband seems not to have had the remotest suspiction of his wife's infidelity. When she did not come home on Tuesday night he hunted for her until morning, hunted for her all day on Wednesday and Wednesday and the carrying their foriors wednesday night, carrying their foriorn little child around with him most of the time and presenting so pathetic a spectacle that the neighbors were much touched.

As he was starting out yesterday morning to continue the search a woman in the where he lived told him about reading housewhere he lived told him about reading in the newspaper of the tragedy in the Seventy-sixth street hotel and the poor fellow, taking the child with him, went to the Morgue. There he learned the worst. He was sadly shaken by the blow, although he said little beyond telling the Morgue keeper that he would have his wife's body removed. Schillinger's father, Mathias Schillinger, and his sister Emma went to the Coroner's resterday afternoon and there Emma started to read to the Coroner the the suicide had sent to his parents. she broke down and could not go on. The letter in part pertained to the disposition of a legacy of some $8,000 into which young Schillinger had come recently. Schil-

Schillinger had come recently. Schillinger's employer said that the young man had been sighing and crying about the shop a good deal of late. When spoken to about his low spirits he shook his head hinting darkly that all would soon be made She was thirty years old. Schillinger was Bosron, Oct. 24 -- Nettle Mountain, oung stenographer employed by the Lowell representative of a New York insurance company, came to Boston this afternoon with Deputy United States Marshal Waters to tell Assistant United States District Attorney Casey what she knew about Albert J. Smith, one of the two former bank officials of Lowell. She lives at Lowell Highlands and several statements had been made that Smith was seen with her on Saturday evening.

Miss Mountain said that while she was acquainted with Smith, she knew nothing of his affairs. She said that she did not know he intended to run away and denied positively that she had seen him since Thursday last. She added that she does not know where he is now and has had no communication with him. The young woman said there was no reason why she should not communicate anything she knows concerning Smith or Swift and the officers believe her. She will not be a witness before the Grand Jury.

The Grand Jury took up the Merchants' Bank case at noon to-day. President A. G. Pollard and Charles S. Lilley were examined between that hour and noon adjournment. This afternoon William H. FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL THURSDAY, Oct. 24. The market for Union Pacific common and for St. Paul, which were again the leaders in respect to activity, indicated very plainly that yesterday's improvement in them had been taken advantage of to dispose of a good deal of long stock The dealings in them were much than yesterday, the falling off in I Pacific being nearly 50 per cent and St. Paul about 25 per cent. The last named Pacific closed 1 per cent. lower than last night. There was also a decrease of nearly 50 per cent, in the trading in Southern Pacific, but it sustained only a fractional net decline. Although the transactions in these stocks were about 160,000 shares less than yesterday, the sales of all stocks were considerably larger. In other words, there was a much better distribution of the business than yesterday. The more noteworthy larger dealings were in Sugar Refining, Baltimore and Ohio, Erle, ( tario and Western, Reading issues and the United States Steel stocks.

The revival of interest in the anthracite coal stocks was the most conspicuous feature of the market. The speculation in then was apparently stimulated by authoritative statements that the output of anthracita coal this year will be the largest in the history of the industry. The indications are that the increase over last year will be an proximately 10,000,000 tons, making the total production about 55,000,000 tons. As is well known the community of interests among the anthracite producing and carry ing companies was never stronger than s now, and in consequence prices are we maintained at figures which show handsome profits to both producers and the ransportation companies. The demand for anthracite is so great that a shortage of cars for handling it is reported. Co plaints of this character are not confined however, to the anthracite coal carrying oads. There is a shortage of cars to handle he cotton crop, to move fron, and certain of the Western roads are hampered in hand ling the traffic offered them by similar lack of facilities. In their case it is remarkable that this should be the fact in view of the shortage in the corn crop.

The movement in the anthracite coal stocks was most pronounced in Reading common, in Delaware and Hudson and it Lackawanna The last named on unusually heavy transactions scored a net advance of 7 points. Renewed interest in Baltimore and Ohio was attributed to a condition of affairs in the bituminous coal industry similar to that noted in the anthracite trade In the early dealings Sugar Refining, Brooklyn Rapid Transit, Louisville and Nashville and a number of the less but, as the day advanced the impression gained ground, particularly with the professional element, that the improvement in prices vesterday and again this morning ad been taken advantage of by leading consequence there was a disposition of the part of the element referred to to pay the short side of the market. Selling of the same character as the buying at the close yesterday was, therefore, chiefly responsible for the irregular and rather unsettled closing The decision of the Supreme Court of Illinois that corporations chartered by that State are liable to be taxed upon their franchises induced extensive selling of People's Gas, which resulted in a net loss of 2% points. The trading in Amaigamated Copper was fairly heavy, and after a further decline of a point in the early dealings the stock closed fractionally higher than last night. There was no abatement of the speculation in Chicago Great Western common, which was induced yesterday by reports that control of the company may be acquired by some one of the larger systems; but realizing sales exceeded the demand for the stock and closed a little lower than vesterday On the other hand, the preferred B stock was in fairly active demand at an advance of more than 3 points. Other less active issues that enjoyed noteworthy net gains. were Colorado Fuel and Glucose Sugar Refining common. The covering of short contracts was probably responsible for the improvement in the last named, as the indications are that the company is likely to suspend the payment of dividends upon it. The bond market continues strong and active, with the noteworthy dealings in Baltimore and Ohio convertible 6s, Louis Southwestern issues, Union Pacific convertible 4s and Wabash debenture Bs. In the outside market a fairly large and well distributed business was done. Virginia Iron, Coal and Coke 5s were traded in extensively at an advance of nearly 2 points and Dominion Securities sold at 81 and losed only a shade below that figure. Other noteworthy dealings were in American Can common, the market for which was rather heavy; in International Sait certificates and White Knob Copper, at advancing

The foreign exchange market was in the main steady, but rates were generally a little below those of yesterday, owing to falling off in the demand and a somewhat better supply of cotton and grain bills. The operations between the banks and the Sub-Treasury showed a loss to the first named of $1,271,000, making the net pay ments by the banks to the Government little current Clearing House week $602,000 against $1,467,000 during the corresponding period of last week. Trustworthy informaon is that the payment of $10,000,000 by the Pocahontas Company for the pro-erties of the Flat Top Coal Association which is now taking place, will be made in such a way as not to disturb the money market of this centre, although about half of the amount mentioned will eventually go to capitalists represented by Phila delphia institutions.
